

Giving WHILE LIVING

MAKE THE WORLD BETTER TODAY

Philanthropy without the splash.

Every day, throughout our community and our world, good works are underwritten by those who choose to do so privately. These donors give to causes that are important to them, then quietly watch as their charitable investments create positive change.

That is the case for this Martin County couple, now retired, who anonymously fund a variety of environmental and educational initiatives through their partnership with The Community Foundation Martin-St. Lucie.

The Foundation helps them personalize their philanthropic giving while they remain behind the scenes. They value The Foundation’s insight into the most pressing needs in our area, and the organizations that are best equipped to meet those needs.

After opening a modest fund with The Foundation, the couple has been gratified to see how their donations can make a big impact, particularly when combined with others. Yet they don’t feel the need for public recognition, preferring not to make a splash.

“We don’t feel like philanthropists,” they say. “We’re just doing the right thing.”
